There is a big market in the main square every Wednesday. It is very popular because the Vendors don't have to pay to be able to sell there. The only conditions are that they have to give people receipts and sell local products. That's why the fruit and vegetable there is always very fresh. Even though the market is open until 4 P.M. I always come in the morning when they have the widest selection. In addition to fruit and vegetable, you can buy eggs, milk products, and fresh flowers. Almost anything except for meat. Once a month, people also come to sell their pottery and old books.

Buckingham Palace is the London residence and administrative headquarters of the monarch of the United Kingdom. Located in the City of Westminster, the palace is often at the centre of state occasions and royal hospitality. It has been a focal point for the British people at times of national rejoicing and mourning. Originally known as Buckingham House, the building at the core of today's palace was a large townhouse built for the Duke of Buckingham in 1703 on a site that had been in private ownership for at least 150 years. It was acquired by King George III in 1761 as a private residence for Queen Charlotte and became known as The Queen's House. During the 19th century it was enlarged, principally by architects John Nash and Edward Blore, who constructed three wings around a central courtyard. Buckingham Palace became the London residence of the British monarch on the accession of Queen Victoria in 1837.
